Turin, April 17, N. S.

BY the laſt Accounts we had from Prince Lobcowitz we hear, that he has fixed his Camp at Foſs Alta on this Side the Panaro. By this Poſition, by Nature very ſtrong and favourable, he covers Modena, the Mirandola, as well as his Communication with the Po and Mantua, from whence by Degrees ſome Recruits begin to join his Army; and his Situation at preſent is ſuch, that it is very much queſtioned whether M. de Gages will dare, or is ſtrong enough to attack him. The three Battalions, which the King of Sardinia ſent from Piedmont, are got ſafe into Modena; and at the Auſtrian General's Requeſt, a Regiment of Horſe quarter'd at Placentia was immediately ordered to march to his Army, and is ſuppoſed to have joined it Yeſterday Evening. It is hoped that this Reinforcement, together with the Regiments of Pallavicini and Clerici and Waraſdiners that were in Lombardy, and about 2000 Recruits from Germany already arrived at Prince Lobcowitz's Camp, will enable him to make a Stand, and to maintain the advantagious Poſt he has fixed upon. M. de Gages has not as yet any of his large Artillery, and conſequently cannot attempt to beſiege any of the Places. As far as we can judge of his Plan ſince his paſſing the Panaro towards the Fountain Head at Spillimberto on the 14th Inſtant, he will probably march as ſoon as his Cavalry from Savoy, which is to be at the Var on the 20th, is once entred into the County of Nice. It is ſaid that laſt Night Orders were iſſued and ſent to above twenty Battalions of the Sardinian Troops to march to the Poſts aſſigned them towards the Genoeſe Frontiers, in order to give all poſſible Oppoſition to the Enemy; and it is thought the Engliſh Squadron will greatly moleſt and diſtreſs Don Philip's Army in their March by the Rivera. Capt. Ambroſe ſome few Days ago took, ſunk or deſtroyed ſeven of the Enemy's Veſſels laden with Arms, Stores and Proviſions near Port Maurice. On the 15th Inſtant, being Holy Thurſday, Marquis d'Ormea was ſuddenly taken ill at Church, and carried Home, as was thought, dying; but he is at preſent conſiderably better.

Vienna, April 24, N. S. Since the Arrival of General Serbelloni, accompanied by ſix Poſtillions, on the 20th Inſtant, with the News of the Deroute of the French and Palatins at Pfaffenhoven, Colonel Odonnel has brought the following Particularities, viz. That the Loſs of the Enemy was much greater than was imagined at firſt, the killed and wounded exceeding 3000, beſides 800 Priſoners, and great Numbers of Deſerters; ſo that it was preſumed, M. Segur, who was march'd to Fribourg, would not reach that Place with more than 3000 of his Countrymen: That General Segur was wounded in the Head, but able to keep on Horſeback: That the Palatins too were gone off, and, as was ſuppoſed, to Heidelbourg or Manheim: That a great Quantity of Bread, juſt baked, was found at Rain, with a conſiderable Magazine of all Sorts of Stores: That the Heſſians were in the mean while at Fridberg, and the Bavarians under the Cannon of Augsbourg.

Vienna, April 24, N. S. After the late Affair at Pfaffenhoven, in which the Enemy were put to Flight, his Excellency Count Bathiani ordered General Trips, with the Huſſars and Waraſdins, to march upon the 16th towards Rain; at the ſame Time Lieutenant Colonel Prince Lobcowitz was detached towards Aicha with 600 Horſe and ſome few Foot, in order to obſerve the Motions of the Bavarian Troops, and to haraſs them in their Retreat towards the Lech. Upon the 17th General Trips obliged the French Garriſon at Rain to retire towards the Lech, leaving behind them a conſiderable Magazine. The Enemy then poſted themſelves at the Head of the Bridge, endeavouring to maintain themſelves there, but General Trips having advanced towards them, and the Waraſdins having already begun to pull up the Palliſadoes, they were obliged to abandon it, and to paſs the Lech under Favour of their Cannon, which was planted on the other Side that River. Thereupon General Trips took Poſſeſſion of the Bridge, ſo that the Enemy had only Time to take up a few Planks on the other Side. They then retired towards Donawert,

(Price Two-Pence.)

Donawert, where having learnt that a Detachment of our Huſſars were advancing on the other Side the Danube, they broke down the Bridge, threw their Ammunition, together with ſome Pieces of Cannon, into the Water, and fled from thence in the Night towards Lavingen. The Bavarians and Heſſians, on their Part, marched on the 16th towards Fridberg, but they were ſo harraſſed by the Corps under the ſaid Prince Lobkowitz, that the Bavarians paſſed the Bridge of the Lech with all Diligence, and ſet Fire to it after them, retiring towards Augsbourg. But the Heſſians ſeparated themſelves from them on this Side near Fridberg, and remained on this Side the Lech, declaring themſelves Neutral. We found two Pieces of Cannon and one Carriage, which the Enemy had left behind them in their forced Retreat.

Dreſden, April 28. We juſt now hear that the Peace is ſigned between the Queen of Hungary and the Elector of Bavaria, and that it was publiſhed at the Head of that Prince's Army, by the Prince of Saxe Hilburghauſen, on M. Thoring's refuſing to perform that Ceremony.

Mentz, April 29. The Prince of Conti paſſed by this Town Yeſterday Morning, and dined with the Prince of Naſſau at Biberich; but we do not yet learn where his Highneſs will fix his Head Quarters. In the mean Time it is certain, that the French have ſummoned the Commiſſaries and Bailiffs of the Electorate of Treves to meet immediately at Simmeren (ſituated in the Palatinate, almoſt equally diſtant from Mentz, Coblentz and Mont Royal) and demanded 200,000 Rations to be furniſhed at that Place. The Elector of Bavaria returned to Munich on the 24th, and the Peace was to be proclaimed in both the Armies on the 26th. We juſt hear, that the French have forced 2000 Peaſants out of the Rhinegow, to work with all poſſible Diligence to fortify the Head of their Bridge at Biberech. The Prince of Conti lay laſt Night at Wisbaden, and it is given out, that his Head Quarters will be at Swolbach. The French talk openly of paſſing the Lahne, and attacking the Allied Army.

Mentz, May 2. The Prince of Conti has taken his Head Quarters at Swolbach, and, it is ſaid, the French Army will encamp in a Day or two. We have Advice that the French have brought about 20 heavy Cannon, and 20 more of a ſmaller Calibre, with a proportionable Quantity of Ammunition to Spire, and 'twas given out that this Train would be brought immediately to Worms, where Directions were iſſued for aſſembling a great Number of Horſes; but thoſe Orders have been ſince countermanded. General Hagenbach, who commanded in the Caſtle at Fribourg, paſſed through this Town two Days ago in his Way to Aix la Chapelle, and reports, that the French upon the Neckar, after having aſſembled all the Forces they had in the Circle of Swabia, do not amount to 15000 Men. Our Elector has received requiſitorial Letters from the Prince of Heſſe, for the Paſſage of his Troops, now upon their Return from Bavaria, who are ſaid not to exceed 4000 Men.

From the Camp at Cambron, May 6. The Allied Army arrived here from Soignies Yeſterday, and will march To-morrow to a Camp marked out about a League on this Side Leuſe, where the French have theſe three Days paſt had an advanced Party. The Reports of Deſerters vary about the Progreſs of the Siege of Tournay; there are four Attacks, but the real one is that at the Gates of the Caſtle.
